Left to Right Justin Kryshak, Carley Reis, and Clayton Lanham

Justin Kryshak, MD

- Undergrad degree: BS in Health and Disease from Purdue University
- Medical School: Indiana University School of Medicine

Growing up in a small, rural town showed me the need for more Family Practice physicians, and I want to be able to fulfill this need for underserved communities. During medical school, I was also drawn to Family Practice because of the variety of patient encounters and the closer relationships between physicians, clinical staff, and patients. While I've always lived in Indiana, my family visited Wisconsin often to visit relatives and I always admired the natural beauty of Wisconsin whenever we came. I'm excited to be in this program that will allow me to practice in both urban and rural settings! I enjoy camping, hiking, sewing, listening to podcasts, and board games.

Clayton Lanham, MD

- Undergrad Degree: B.S. Biochemistry and Molecular & Cellular Biology
- Master's Degree: Diagnostic & Laboratory Sciences
- Medical School: St. George's University School of Medicine

The greatest draw to a specialty, I feel, is how much impact you can make on a person's life. Family Medicine embodies this idea perfectly, as a doctor can be involved in a person's life from birth onwards. The connections you build with your patients can last lifetimes and lead to strong physician patient relationships that build trust between the two. I chose Aurora for multiple reasons, but mainly because I grew up in a rural town and I know just how little access there can be to doctors in the area, and I hope that one day I can work in an underserved area as well. Milwaukee is also a wonderful city that I look forward to exploring and living in for the next chapter of my life.

Carley Reis, MD

- Undergrad Degree: B.S. in Biology, University of Tampa
- Medical School: American University of Antigua College of Medicine

I was drawn to Family Medicine because of the ability to explore all facets of medicine while creating long lasting relationships with patients and their families. The Aurora Lakeland program impressed me because of the opportunity to learn both rural and urban family medicine, along with the strong curriculum and great people. In my free time I enjoy spending time with friends and family, participating in outdoor activities, reading, traveling, exercising, playing guitar, and watching Patriot's football.
